January 25, 2012

Dear Fellow Citizen,

This is my third letter accompanying the annual tax bill since the election of the current Council - and my thirteenth including the pre-merger years 1991-2001.

Pension costs

This is also, unfortunately, the third year in a row when runaway employee pension costs have made up the lion’s share of spending increases for regional costs charged to us by the City of Montreal. Pension costs today represent $600 million a year for Montreal, or three times what they were only four years ago. Even locally, Westmount current and former employee pension costs have soared; they now equal 25% of our total payroll. Finally, though, it seems Quebec may help us do something about it.

Local Debt

You should know that 52% of our local spending goes to salaries and benefits. Another 20% goes to investments in infrastructure - what accountants call capital expenditures.

The policy of “Pay-as-you-go” - paying cash for all routine capital expenditures - was introduced with Westmount’s 1994 budget. “Pay-as-you-go” means that today’s taxpayers pay for renewing today’s infrastructure. But that’s not the City of Montreal’s way: during the years we were merged with them, they borrowed for everything. In fact, Montreal both pocketed our tax money earmarked for pay-as-you-go and stuck us with the debt for the same expenditures - a bit of larceny that today accounts for one-half of Westmount’s current debt of $38 million.

We have got pay-as-you-go financing up to the $4 million mark for 2012, and are closing in on the pre-merger figure of $5 million in today’s dollars. I believe we are still unique in Quebec with such a policy.

Taxes

To misquote Ben Franklin: nothing is certain but debt and taxes. Let’s move on to taxes.

The portion of Westmount’s tax bill for local services has increased by 3% from $25.7 million last year to $26.5 million this year. But Westmount’s share of regional costs has increased by 3.6% to $49.9 million, and accounts for seventy percent of Westmount’s 2012 taxation increase.

With a residential rate of $1.007 per $100 of assessment, the tax bill the average Westmount single-family dwelling will be $11,686 in 2012, which is a 3.3% increase or $374 over 2011.
It is true we have kept the lid in tax increases for local services by upping non-tax revenues such as parking meter rates, which - especially in the east - affect visitors as much as residents. After all, we cannot continue to finance nearly 90% of our spending by property taxes alone. The cumulative impact of changing parking rates in 2011 and increasing them in 2012 to $3 per hour in the eastern sector closest to City of Montreal will bring in $575,000 in additional revenue.

We have phased in the application of the 2010 assessment roll over a three-year period to decrease the impact on our residents. The year 2012 will mark the second year of its application.

Payment of your tax bill can be made in two instalments, the first due on March 1$^{st}$, 2012, and the second on June 1$^{st}$, 2012. An interest rate of 9% per annum will be charged on the unpaid balance. A penalty of 0.5% per month on the outstanding principal will also be charged.

Peter F. Trent,
Mayor
